Times Has Offered Prize for
Winner of Federation of Women's Clubs' Event.

To date there have been more than 500 entries for the long service contest of domestic under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs. The Times has offered a prize to the winner of the contest.

During the last twenty-four hours there have been twenty-six entries. The large number which has come in since noon yesterday is due to the fact that the contest closes tomorrow. All entries will have to be in by 11 p. m.

Slave Before the War.
Perhaps the servant entered today by Mrs. J. K. Houston of 61 Pennsylvania avenue, will be among the foremost contestants for a prize in the long service contest. This woman, Anna Brown, cannot tell her own age. According to Mrs. Houston, Anna came into her service forty years ago, when the Houstons were married. Before that time she had been in the service of the Houston family for many years.

How 'Auntie' Replied.
Mrs. Clara C. Dyer, of 1517 R street, has entered a very old servant, who has been with them for a number of years. In speaking of the faithfulness shown by one of her servants she said some time ago, Mrs. Dyer said of the reply made by the "auntie" when told that she was a slave no longer.

Central Labor Union Will March in Parade
The Central Labor Union unanimously voted to participate in the Wilson demonstration Thursday night when N. P. Alfalfa suggested the matter at last night's meeting of the organization.

Divorce Finding Upheld.

'DON'T FLIRT,' ADVICE TO WOMEN LAWYERS

Judge Tells Portias to Be Feminine and at the Same Time Serious.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"Any woman who can make good lemon pie and dance the two-step is a success. But women lawyers must not try to win their cases through flirtation."

Two hundred members of the Woman Lawyers' Association added their applause to that of the prominent men present when Judge L. D. Gibbs, of the Bronx county court, laid down certain rules for "ladies" and others for "lady lawyers" last night.

As women, the judge counseled the Portias to "be living, breathing, circus to sorrow, rather than build city halls."

But as lawyers he advised them "to stand on their own feet and wear the right sort of heels. Learn not to lean."

"Don't rely upon sex to win cases," he said. "Come into the courtroom dressed for serious business and not for flirtation. Don't divorce yourself from femininity, however, and come dressed in masculine garb except for the trousers."

Judge Gibbs said that he would deny no woman living any right or privilege accorded to a man, and that he looked forward to the day when the woman would be placed in certain departments of the administration of justice. He said that women would often make better jurors than men, because it is "now almost impossible to be convicted for larceny, for homicide, or for anything else."

INTERIOR DEPT. RIGHTS UPHELD
Court Defends Jurisdiction Over Government Lands.

The exclusive jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior over all Government lands was upheld today by the District Court of Appeals in reversing the ruling of the lower court in the case brought by Ralph H. Cameron, formerly Delegate in Congress from Arizona.

Mr. Cameron attacked the authority of Secretary Lane to determine the character of Government lands and to inquire into the matter of mining claims long lived up to. The lower court held with Mr. Cameron.

The property in controversy was included within the reserve for a national park and national monument in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. Cameron's claim, it was declared, commanded many of the strategic points of interest in the park. He refused to apply for a patent to the land.

Clifford Lanham Succeeds Father

Clifford Lanham, assistant superintendent of trees and parkings, was appointed by the District Commissioners today, superintendent to succeed his father, Truman H. Lanham, who died last Friday. Mr. Lanham entered immediately upon his new duties. His successor has not been selected.

WAR ON WASTE PLAN OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Food and Fuel to Come Under More Careful Observance of Washington Housewives.

buying means special provision for storage.

"Most cook books and most woman's pages in the newspapers keep harping on what to do with 'left overs.' Doesn't it ever occur to anyone that in a well-managed home there ought not to be this tremendous struggle with left overs?"

French System Good.
"The French know better than we how to buy. They buy for the mouths of the eaters. We buy what we have been accustomed to, even in the face of higher prices. Some day we will learn, when we want one egg to buy one egg; when we want one lamb chop to buy one lamb chop."

"I have exact information about prices abroad, and I can prove that prices here, even in war time, are lower than prices in this country."

"Instead of trying to go to markets, which takes time, and to find cheap groceries, which costs money in the long run, some day we will learn to buy from reliable dealers and trust him to get good commodities for the price we pay."

Engage Competent Cook.
"Why not engage competent domestics? Then why not let them go about their work as any other experts? I don't ask my cook how she prepares a dish, that is her business. I don't know how my clothes are manufactured, or how any of the other things I buy are produced, do I?"

But, most striking of all, Mrs. Thompson's assertion is that the more striking because they come from a recognized expert, who has written and lectured on domestic economics.

"High prices? The cost of living is higher usually because we keep on buying the things we know are high. When I reopened my home more than a month ago, I was awfully startled. I took my bills with fear and trembling. Meanwhile I tried to keep down expenses by not buying the particular things I knew to be high."

Cost Was the Same.
"Lo and behold, when the bills came in I found it had cost me to run the same household, feed as many people, and feed them as well, just exactly what it did for me corresponding month a year ago!"

All this does not mean that Mrs. Thompson does not recognize that there is a trend toward higher prices. "But we may learn a valuable lesson in conservation by avoiding waste. That is responsible for the high cost of living in most homes. Any body of women who hope to cope with higher prices easily can combat them by simple methods of intelligent buying and avoidance of wastage."

"I am tired of hearing middlemen and producers assailed. They are American citizens. Usually their margin of profit is small enough. When the things that enter into making a product cost more, the product must follow economic law and cost more."

One added point scored by Mrs. Thompson against co-operative buying is the item of what she terms "social value."

French Know Term.
"The French know the term, the American economists class it with utility. Take the case of the housewife who works all day, sets her hair, sits on a chair, and then to her children, then sets forth with her market basket on her arm to lug home a cargo of articles from some central distributing point, the co-operative enterprise."

"She fails to realize that her time is the item of what she terms 'social value.'"

"The time might be used to better advantage in getting ready to converse with her husband and in receiving him in proper attire. All that means actual cash in the long run, for the higher the standard of the home, the higher the incentive for the husband to be successful at his work."

When you go figuring on high prices add in the cost of delivery. Then figure out if it may not be worth while before you abolish it."

The executive committee of the Housekeepers' Alliance intends working out some method by which the results in economy for a certain period in the kitchen of each competitor may be tabulated, then open the competition for prizes for the housewives who effect the greatest saving.

Collier Caesar Will Carry Food to Starving Syrians

Through an arrangement made by the State and Navy Departments, at the request of the American Red Cross, the naval collier Caesar will leave New York December 20 with a boat load of food for starving Syrians.

More than $100,000 was raised on the recent Syrian relief days on high prices added in the cost of delivery. Then figure out if it may not be worth while before you abolish it."

The 10,000 starving Syrians and other countless thousands living on reduced food rations.

RAILROADS HOPED TO AVOID NEW LAW

Expected Election of Hughes Would Help Them Out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—That the railroads hoped for some way out of making the Adamson law effective in event of Hughes' election is the belief today of high railroad brotherhood men. Some of them declared secretly that yesterday's conference over operation of the law was called solely because President Wilson was re-elected.

On the other hand, they charged that the railroads hoped for a change in the law if Hughes was successful.

The conference failed of any agreement on operation of the law, and it was uncertain early today whether the railroad men, as well as the rail chiefs, confessed they weren't quite sure of what they have in the law, but the union men appeared confident the presidents will meet their demands and avoid a strike in January.

President Lay of the trainmen, was in Cleveland today, while leaders of the other railway unions remained here.

The entire group expects to put in a vigorous protest at Washington next week against features of the Newlands railroad investigation act as far as it affects the unions.
